MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Colleague,

In 1997, the Wisconsin Crime Laboratory Bureau established its DNA Databank program. The object of this program was to enter qualifying convicted offender DNA information into a local database that interfaced with a national database established and controlled by the FBI. This is, of course, the CODIS (Combined DNA Index System) program.

We had a humble beginning in Wisconsin with this program as data was entered and a database was established. In 1997, the first year of the program, there was one DNA offender hit to a sexual assault case. The program continued to develop throughout the years, and legislation was passed to expand the qualifying offenses for which DNA samples could be taken.

Today the system has been in place for more than 15 years and there have been more than 4,546 total hits. Here's a breakdown of some of those hits:

- 906 hits to sexual assault cases;
- 287 hits to homicide/attempted homicide cases;
- 296 Wisconsin convicted offenders linked to other states' unsolved cases; and
- 471 unsolved Wisconsin cases linked to other states' convicted offenders.

This program not only protects the citizens of the state of Wisconsin with approximately 12,000 new offender samples being added each year here, but it is an integral part of public safety nationwide. The most recent example of the power of this nationwide program for Wisconsin was a 20-year-old unsolved Waupaca County sexual assault case in which the agency submitted additional evidence to the CLB for analysis. DNA obtained from this analysis was uploaded into CODIS and hit on an offender in Oklahoma. The suspect in this case was extradited back to Wisconsin and pleaded guilty to first-degree sexual assault.

As the legislature considers DNA at arrest, which would result in the expansion of the databank program, it is worth reflecting on the history and power of this program and anticipating its future in preventing further victimization, reducing law enforcement investigative costs, solving cold cases, and identifying violent offenders more quickly. Thank you.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "J.B. Van Hollen". The signature is written in a cursive, flowing style.

J.B. Van Hollen

Bailey v. United States Decided by the United States Supreme Court February 19, 2013

Issues:

Whether the police can stop a vehicle solely because they know it had started its trip at a search warrant site. The case also includes a good discussion as to what the police can do to control a search warrant scene.

Facts:

The police were preparing to execute a warrant to search a basement apartment for a handgun. Meanwhile other officers were conducting surveillance of the search warrant site and saw two men leave the apartment, get in a car and drive away. The officers who were conducting surveillance followed the car for approximately a mile and then stopped it. At first both men said they lived at the apartment where the search warrant was to take place, but then denied it when they heard about the search warrant. Both men were taken back to the apartment where the search team had already found a gun and illicit drugs, leading to the arrest of the two men.

Defendant's Argument:

The defendant argued that his vehicle was illegally stopped since the police did not have the requisite reasonable suspicion.

The State's Argument:

The state argued that the fact the police had observed the vehicle leave an area that was to be searched pursuant to a search warrant provided a sufficient basis for making a vehicle stop.

Attorney General

The Supreme Court Holding:

The United States Supreme Court first reviewed the "detention incident to search" rule they had articulated in Michigan v. Summers. The rule was based on three justifications; 1) safety of search, 2) efficiency of search, and 3) fleeing prevention- but this aspect was viewed more from a preserving integrity of search site perspective than an escape concern. Accordingly, the high court held that none of these justifications are served when the detention incident to a search warrant occurs away from the immediate vicinity of the warrant site. Michigan v. Summers created a bright line rule- the police are always entitled to detain people incident to search warrant execution, who are found in the immediate vicinity of the search site, regardless of the circumstances of the particular case. However, when the police confront people connected to the warrant site away from the vicinity of the search location they lose the bright line rule.

Therefore, when the police detain people away from the vicinity of the warrant site they will have to show either reasonable suspicion, to justify a Terry stop, or probable cause to justify an arrest. Also, the fact that the detained people are connected to the warrant site is not by itself a sufficient reasonable suspicion; you need more and it is this issue that will be resolved in remand in this case.

Note:

Overall, the good part of this case is that it reaffirms that the Michigan v. Summers rule is a bright line one, and therefore, regardless of circumstances, the police can detain anyone they encounter in the immediate vicinity of a search warrant site. Also, this case does not preclude stops away from site but does require a showing at the minimum of reasonable suspicion. As a practical matter, a subject's connection to a search warrant site is a good head start towards reasonable suspicion. right, since it was the brother who smashed the door down, without police provocation.

FBI OFFICERS KILLED

San Bernardino County Sheriff's Department (SBCSD), California

Veteran Detective, aged 35, with 15 years law enforcement was fatally shot on February 21, 2013 at approximately 1:30 P.M. in San Bernardino National Forest area of Southern California. Detective responded to radio traffic after subject had car-jacked a civilian in an apparent attempt to drive down the mountain from Big Bear Lake. When the detective and other officers confronted the subject, a shoot-out ensued ending with the victim detective being fatally wounded and non-fatal wounding of SBCSD Deputy Sheriff. Subject first drove to Big Bear Lake on February 7, 2013 after he first attempted to kill a Los Angeles Police Department officer in Corona, California. On the same date, subject ambushed a Riverside Police Department officer and a trainee in a marked unit. This attack resulted in the officer being fatally wounded and the trainee being seriously wounded. Despite massive search effort, subject remained concealed from law enforcement until February 12, 2013 when two civilians entered a cabin where the subject had been hiding and forced subject to take their car and flee. Shortly after fatally wounding the SBCSD Victim Detective, subject barricaded himself in another cabin which was quickly surrounded by law enforcement. During the standoff, subject reportedly committed suicide with self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Virginia State Police Department (VSP)

Veteran Master Trooper, aged 63, with 40 years law enforcement experience with agency, was fatally shot on March 7, 2013 at approximately 1:20 P.M. Reports indicate trooper pulled alongside stopped vehicle on side of interstate at which time victim trooper was shot. It is believed trooper's foot may have pressed vehicles accelerator causing patrol unit to veer off road and into woods. Responding VSP trooper arrived at scene and observed subject firing shotgun into trooper's patrol unit. Responding trooper fired on subject causing him to flee into woods. Subject, who was apprehended about half mile from incident scene, was charged with capital murder of police officer, attempted capital murder of a police officer, and two counts of using firearm in commission of a felony.

Additional details regarding incidents are not available. Should you wish to obtain information for condolence purposes, please contact your department's Law Enforcement Online (LEO) representative.
