MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Colleague,

One of our most important responsibilities at the Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ) is to ensure that our criminal history and record files are complete and accurate. The ability to achieve this goal relies heavily on a strong communicative partnership with law enforcement, district attorneys and the courts. The value of the various records submitted, which most commonly include arrest fingerprints and DNA collection kits, is diminished if the DOJ does not receive complete and accurate information. Incomplete record submissions not only have an adverse affect on the information available to law enforcement but may also affect the DOJ's ability to conduct a thorough check in other vital programmatic areas. These programs include firearms restriction searches that are conducted for handgun purchases and concealed carry licenses, as well as DNA submissions that are submitted as the result of a felony conviction and utilized to identify suspects in a myriad of offenses. As Wisconsin continues to move forward in the realm of criminal justice technology, most notably proposed DNA at arrest legislation, it will be imperative that our criminal justice partners are vigilant in obtaining and properly submitting arrest, fingerprint, and DNA information. Within each area -- law enforcement, district attorneys, and the courts -- we count on your diligence to help ensure accurate and complete record information is sent to the DOJ. The following paragraphs illustrate the most common omissions.

The Crime Laboratory Bureau would like to remind our criminal justice users that all fields of the Wisconsin DNA Databank Buccal Swab Collection Kit Submission Form (form number DJ-LE-106 11/10) must be filled out completely, be legible, and have index prints that are identifiable. If the submitter does not have an existing Wisconsin State Identification Number (SID), a full set of prints must accompany the DNA datasheet submission. Without identifiable prints, the DNA submissions cannot be added to our database and a valuable identification tool is lost.

The Crime Laboratory Bureau (CLB) receives a small number of forms with incomplete data. This includes lack of information on the form, unidentifiable prints on the form, or the absence of a 10-print card for new arrestees. In the past, the CLB staff has tried to resolve these incomplete datasheets informally. However, with the anticipated increase in volume of these submissions, a new policy is being implemented that will require incomplete datasheets to be resolved by the submitting agency within five working days or the forms and DNA submission will be returned to the submitting agency for resolution. This policy will allow the CLB to identify submitters that may need additional training and focus the staff of the CLB on processing these DNA submissions and datasheets efficiently. Your cooperation on this issue is greatly appreciated.

The Crime Information Bureau (CIB) wishes to remind all agencies that when submitting 10-print arrest fingerprints to the DOJ, the arrest tracking number (ATN) is the most important identifier on the card. The ATN allows for the arrest to be followed through the judicial system and ultimately connected to the final disposition in the DOJ's criminal history database. All case documents should have this number properly placed so as to ensure the final dispositions are connected with the proper arrests and ultimately tabbed to the correct criminal history as quickly and accurately as possible. The ATN should be forwarded to the prosecutor as soon as possible to ensure it is added to their record system (PROTECT), which then follows the case through the courts to final disposition.

Law enforcement, district attorneys and the courts must work in close coordination to ensure only one set of fingerprints, creating one unique ATN, is submitted for each charging event. Efficient and accurate updating of criminal history records enables officers, prosecutors, and the courts to be privy to the most current information when making arrest, charging, and judicial determinations.

The DOJ hosts several conferences each year allowing us to present information on topics that affect all of us. If there are any topics that you feel would be beneficial statewide please forward them to the appropriate conference coordinators so we can consider including them in the future. Thank you.

Sincerely,

J.B. Van Hollen
Attorney General

State v. Lemoine
Decided by the Wisconsin Supreme Court
January 8, 2013

Issues:

Whether a non-custodial statement to the police was voluntary under the circumstances presented. Though calling it a close call, the Wisconsin Supreme Court held that the defendant's statements were voluntary and thus admissible.

Facts:

The defendant visited a friend at his friend's house. The defendant's friend's daughter, a five year old, went jumping on the trampoline in the backyard and the defendant offered to watch her. During this time, according to the five year old, the defendant pulled down her underwear and put his finger in her "pee-pee".

The police investigated this sexual assault incident and called the defendant requesting that he come to the sheriff's department for questioning. The defendant agreed with this request and responded to the sheriff's department. The interview, lasted approximately 80 minutes, and took place in a small, windowless office at the sheriff's department and was recorded. The defendant was not arrested, was not handcuffed, and was allowed to answer his cell phone if it rang. All parties conceded that the interview was not custodial; the Miranda warning was not read.

During the initial stages of the interview the defendant denied any inappropriate conduct. The police told the defendant that they did not believe his version of the events and advised that if the defendant "came clean" things could go easier. The police also overrated the evidence that they had procured, by falsely claiming that extensive tests of the 5 year old were being conducted and that it was likely the results would incriminate the defendant. The police then told the defendant that if he gave the "true story" he would not have to go to jail that night, and that would give him time to talk to his attorney. The police suggested that an opportunity to call counsel would not be present if the defendant was incarcerated. The police also told the defendant that they would talk to the District Attorney, if the defendant told the truth, and try to minimize any publicity the case might generate. The defendant then made an admission of illegal sexual contact with the five year old girl.

Defendant's Argument:

The defendant argued that his admissions to the police should be suppressed as they were involuntary and the product of coercive police tactics. While conceding that he was not in custody during the interview, the defendant argued that he was coerced, because he was promised no jail if he confessed and, therefore by implication, placement in jail if he did not. The defendant also argued that the police lied in overstating the evidence against him, and in effect denied him his right to counsel by wrongly suggesting that he would not be allowed to contact an attorney from jail.

The State's Argument:

The state argued that the police tactics employed were not unduly coercive and under the totality of the circumstances the defendant's admissions were voluntary.

The Court's Holding:

The Wisconsin Supreme Court reprised the test as to whether a defendant's statements are voluntary or involuntary; balancing the personal characteristics of the defendant against pressures imposed by law enforcement officers to determine if the pressures exceeded the defendant's ability to resist. The Court found the case to be a close one but ultimately sided with the state. The key for the court was that the defendant was 23 years old, was reasonably intelligent, had a good job, and had previous encounters with the police. In other words, the court held that the defendant in this case was not particularly vulnerable to police tactics. The court had no trouble with some overstating of the evidence, as that is only coercive to a person who has a guilty conscience, and took special note that the defendant was not in custody. On the other hand the court did not like the police giving false information about access to an attorney. So, balancing all the factors, the court narrowly found that the defendant's statements were voluntary.

Cautionary Note:

While the state won this case, and most of the police work was solid, there were a couple of tactics used that we do not recommend. In my view it is not a good idea to discuss jail in the context of subject cooperation during an interview or interrogation. Also, it is never a good idea to misrepresent, knowingly or otherwise, a subject's access to counsel.

Otherwise this case does reestablish that some police stretching of the evidence is acceptable and reminds us that the voluntariness analysis is a balancing test based on every factor present.

Bellaire police department (BPD), Texas, Advised veteran corporal, aged 53, with over 27 years' law enforcement experience, was fatally shot on 12/24/2012 at approximately 8:50 A.M. Corporal, who was in uniform and operating marked BPD patrol car, observed vehicle exceeding posted speed limit and initiated traffic stop. Subject pulled vehicle to curb and partially opened driver side door. When Corporal approached driver side door, he requested subject to exit vehicle. Subject asked why he needed to exit vehicle, prompting Corporal to repeat his command. After subject repeatedly questioned Corporal as to reason he was being asked to exit vehicle, corporal grabbed driver side door which remained partially open. Subject subsequently closed driver side door and drove off at high rate of speed with emergency lights and siren activated, corporal pursued subject vehicle at high rate of speed. During pursuit, subject vehicle struck unoccupied vehicle parked on street and occupied pickup truck. Driver of pickup truck immediately began pursuing subject vehicle resulting in Corporal having obstructed view of subject vehicle during portions of pursuit. Subject pulled into business parking lot followed by pickup truck and then by Corporal. Subject's vehicle came to rest after striking dumpster positioned against front of building. Subject partially opened driver side door while Corporal approached on foot. Corporal briefly placed his hand on service weapon, which remained holstered, while ordering subject to exit vehicle. Corporal began struggling with subject who remained seated in driver seat. During struggle, subject kept repeating "I just need to call my friend." Owner of business approached Corporal from behind as Corporal continued to struggle with subject. After about 30 seconds into struggle, subject shot victim Corporal in forehead with .380-caliber semiautomatic handgun and victim Corporal fell to ground. Subject exited vehicle and immediately shot business owner, who appeared to be attempting to assist victim Corporal, one time in chest. Subject then pointed handgun at driver of pickup truck before his attention was diverted by additional BPD units arriving on scene. Subject subsequently fired his weapon at arriving BPD units before fleeing on foot. Responding BPD officers returned fire, striking subject twice. Subject was located several minutes later hiding under nearby building and was taken into custody by responding Houston Police Department officers. Victim Corporal was immediately transported to hospital where he
