MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Colleague,

The manufacture and sale of illicit synthetic drugs has become a problem in Wisconsin and across the nation. Creators of these synthetic drugs will often slightly alter the structure of a compound in an attempt to evade prosecution and control. Together with the Division of Criminal Investigation (DCI) and the State Crime Laboratory, I have been actively working with the state Legislature, the Controlled Substance Board (CSB), and local, state and federal agencies to address this issue.

Recently, at its April meeting, the CSB initiated emergency scheduling of the synthetic drugs UR-144, XLR-11 and AKB-48.¹ The CSB also is preparing rules to schedule all of the synthetic cannabinoids and hallucinogens that were added to the Federal Controlled Substances Act in July 2012. This includes the synthetic cannabinoids AM-2201, AM-694, RCS-4, RCS-8, JWH-398, JWH-203 and several 2C-I analog hallucinogens.

The Department of Justice (DOJ) has proposed new legislation to cover all of the synthetic drugs identified above, and far more. The proposed legislation utilizes a novel approach by employing precise chemical structure definitions, i.e., “structure classes,” so that both the listed synthetic cannabinoid and bath salt compounds will be covered by the legislation, as well as any compound matching the structure definition. This means that a clandestine chemist will no longer be able to tweak the chemical structure of a drug to create a new “designer drug” not covered by an existing statute.

We are hopeful that this pending legislation will become law. Until it does, however, other resources and options exist:

- In many instances, Wis. Stat. § 961.25 already allows a controlled substance analog to be charged as a schedule I substance. However, CSB must be notified of the charges and be provided with certain information within 60 days and, if CSB determines that the analog should not be scheduled, prosecution may not go forward.
- Wis. Stat. §§ 961.14(4) (Hallucinogenic substances) and 961.14 (7) (Stimulants) already identify the scheduled substances to include “analogs” of specific identified compounds. Therefore, under these provisions, prosecutions may be possible without an independent scheduling of the analog.
- Law enforcement can, and should, engage in public education and other methods to deter the use and sale of synthetic drugs. A conversation about possible prosecution under section 961.25 and/or section 961.14 with local business establishments may be enough for them to take these dangerous products off of the shelf.

¹ The federal Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) emergency scheduled UR-144, XLR-11 and AKB-48, effective May 16, 2013 and the DEA permanently added Methylone (bath salt) to Schedule I on April 12, 2013.

- Wis. Stat. § 941.316 makes it illegal to ingest “hazardous substances,” whether or not they are scheduled. While this was originally directed primarily at the use of over-the-counter products used as inhalants, it also may be an option for charging those who misuse products sold as “bath salts” or “incense.”
- Sellers of unscheduled synthetics also may be in violation of Wis. Stat. § 100.182(3), which prohibits fraudulent advertising of “drugs,” and makes it illegal to promote the physical or psychological effects of any “substance” that has not been approved for human consumption by the FDA.

Please take note that OWI cases involving synthetic cannabinoids or bath salts also may face these same hurdles and requirements. Act 31 added synthetic cannabinoids and bath salts to Schedule I, and as such, if a person is arrested for operating under the influence of one of these substances, he/she can be charged with operating under the influence of a restricted controlled substance under s. 346.63(1)(am). If charged as an analog, the same issues/considerations listed above would be relevant.

Law enforcement should discuss these avenues, and other possible approaches, with their local prosecutors. It is my hope that we can all work together to mitigate the harm posed by synthetic drugs under existing law and under new laws passed by our Legislature. Thank you.

Sincerely,

*J.B. Van Hollen
Attorney General*

Maryland v King Decided by the United States Supreme Court on June 3rd, 2013

Issue:

Whether the police can lawfully execute a warrantless non-consensual DNA swab to a person arrested for a serious offense. The Supreme Court by a 5-4 vote held that a Maryland statute allowing for the collection and analysis of a DNA sample of people arrested and charged with serious crimes is constitutional.

Facts:

In 2009 Alonzo King was arrested and charged with first and second degree assault for menacing a group of people with a shotgun. As part of the routine booking procedure for serious offenses, King's DNA sample was taken by applying a cotton swab to the inside of his cheeks. This procedure was taken without a warrant and without King's consent. The DNA was found to match DNA taken from a rape victim 6 years earlier. Ultimately King was tried and convicted for the rape.

The Defendant's argument:

King argued that his DNA evidence should have been suppressed since its seizure violated the 4th amendment as there was no warrant and he did not consent to the procedure.

The State's Argument:

The state argued that the DNA seizure was lawful as part of the booking procedure; a process analogous to taking a finger print.

The United States Supreme Court Holding:

The court held that the advantages to the state in allowing for DNA samples to be taken from people arrested for serious offenses far outweighed the very minimum intrusion caused by the taking of the sample. The Court determined that though swabbing for DNA is a 4th amendment search it is reasonable because of the various governmental interests involved; these interests are:

- 1) The importance of processing and identifying people in custody,
- 2) ensuring the safety of jail staff so that they know the prior history of the person they are dealing with,
- 3) assessing the danger to the public when making bail determination and
- 4) the possible exoneration of people falsely held or convicted of a crime.

The majority noted that 4th amendment concerns are minimized by the facts that the sample cannot be analyzed until after arraignment, and the sample would be destroyed if the subject is not convicted of the serious offense, which led to the swabbing.

Impact for Wisconsin:

None, immediately, as legislation allowing for DNA swabbing of people arrested for felonies is not yet operational. However, this case means that such legislation can continue to go forward as it is likely constitutional under the holding of Maryland v. King. The Wisconsin statute is similar to the Maryland statute endorsed by the high court. One difference is that the Wisconsin law, once it is operational, will prohibit the DNA from being analyzed until there is a "Riverside" type probable cause hearing, but allow for its analysis before arraignment.
