MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Official:

July marks the start of the first year of a new biennial budget for the State of Wisconsin. Once again, state agencies were asked to cut spending while continuing to provide quality services. The Department of Justice (DOJ) continues to look to technology as a way to provide services to our law enforcement partners while holding our budgets in line with state mandates.

WILENET – Wisconsin’s Law Enforcement website – is using database and Internet technology to provide services to the state’s criminal justice community. Whether you’re looking for the testimony from the Taser hearings or the proposed model policy on eye witness identification, you’ll find it on WILENET.

DOJ began using electronic communication as a means of disseminating information to law enforcement officers in the mid-1990s. What began as the DOJ Bulletin Board System evolved into a full-blown Internet site before the turn of the century.

Hundreds of agencies are using WILENET each year as a recruitment tool. Shortly after submitting an employment ad via WILENET, the announcement is accessible by job seekers across the country. A Fox Valley agency found that well over 90% of the individuals taking its police officer exam this spring learned of the job opening on WILENET. This service is provided by DOJ at no cost to local agencies.

WILENET’s on-line training database contains more than 250 course offerings that can be searched by subject matter or location. Links to the academies offering the training provide students with detailed information about the course offerings. The SNAPSHOT feature on WILENET gives law enforcement personnel a glimpse at their training and certification records that are on file with the Training & Standards Bureau.

WILENET’s success in reaching the criminal justice audience prompted the Departments of Transportation and Corrections to contact DOJ about sharing information with law enforcement. WILENET is now the vehicle used to request a certified driving record and to download the monthly suspension/revocation lists compiled by DOT. The sex offender registry and Wisconsin offender database (LOCATOR) maintained by DOC are accessible to law enforcement via WILENET.

Nearly 2,000 criminal justice professionals login to WILENET each day. I invite you to visit www.wilenet.org and see first-hand the wealth of information that is just a click away.

Very truly yours,

*Peg Lautenschlager
Attorney General*

State v. Sykes

2005 WI 48

Decided by the Wisconsin Supreme Court on April 22nd, 2005

Introduction:

This case deals with the “search incident to arrest” doctrine. Specifically this case holds that an officer does not need to arrest the subject prior to conducting the search but must have the requisite probable cause to arrest before starting the search.

Facts:

A police officer went with a locksmith and a landlord to an apartment to change the locks with the tenant’s permission. The tenant wanted the locks changed because he previously found the defendant and his girlfriend living in the apartment and they had refused to leave. When the officer knocked on the door a woman opened the door and then immediately tried to shut it. The officer entered the apartment and found others inside, including the defendant.

The officer called for backup and the defendant was directed to sit down in the living room and to provide identification. The defendant told the officer that his identification was in his wallet which was under a piece of furniture in the living room. The officer went to the spot, found the wallet, opened it, and found cocaine.

Defendant's Position:

The defendant argued that the search of his wallet was unlawful and that the cocaine should be suppressed. The defendant’s position was that he had not consented to a search of a wallet by merely explaining where it was located and that there was no other possible justification for the search. The defendant further argued that a search incident to an arrest was not a viable justification since the officer had not arrested him prior to opening the wallet.

The State's Position:

The state did not argue at the Supreme Court level that there was consent but did argue that the search incident to arrest doctrine was applicable. The state reasoned that the officer had ample cause to arrest the defendant for trespass before the officer opened the wallet, even though the officer had not actually placed the defendant under arrest.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court Holding:

The Wisconsin Supreme Court agreed with the state. The Court held that it is irrelevant that no arrest took place before the search if the officer already had the requisite probable cause to make an arrest. The Court pointed out that the police officer had probable cause to arrest the subject for trespass and could have done so lawfully before finding and opening the wallet. The Court also held it irrelevant as to whether or not the officer had the subjective intent to arrest the defendant for trespass prior to the search so long as there was an objective basis for probable cause to arrest. The key inquiry is what the officer knew prior to the search. If the officer knew enough facts for probable cause to arrest then that can trigger a lawful search incident to arrest even when no arrest is made prior to the search.

Cautionary Note:

Despite this ruling it is still far better practice to arrest a subject prior to conducting a “search incident to arrest”. That takes the guess work out of the occasion. Courts will always take a suspicious look at police who do the search before the arrest in determining whether the police had sufficient probable cause to arrest before the search. Also, while not relevant to this opinion another key is that the wallet was presumably found within the “lunge area” of the defendant so there was no issue of the officer extending the search beyond the scope of a search incident to arrest.

Information About
Sovereign Citizens

Recently, Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reported an encounter with a sovereign citizen claiming to belong to the Little Shell Pembina Band of North America. The subject stated he had the right to freely explore all of North America as a hunter, fisher or trapper and not pay admission fees. After the situation was explained, he did leave without incident. Similar encounters with sovereign citizens have been reported in Polk County.

Law enforcement officers and public officials around the country are encountering members of this new and active anti-government extremist group that calls itself the "Little Shell Pembina Band of North America." Members of the group claim that they belong to a "sovereign" Native American tribe and therefore are not subject to laws and regulations. In reality, the "Little Shell Pembina Band" is part of the anti-government movement and its open membership allows a variety of non-ancestry anti-government figures to join. Its members' activities range from driving with bogus license plates to perpetrating insurance fraud schemes to tax evasion. Recently, due to inner conflict this group has splintered into two competing groups.

The origins of the Little Shell Band (named after a Chief Little Shell, who died in 1901) have a kernel of truth. The Little Shell Band did, in fact, once exist as a branch of the Chippewa on the northern Great Plains in the nineteenth century. Most were pushed westward out of Minnesota and North Dakota to Montana.

Today there is a Little Shell Band of Montana, a.k.a. Little Shell Band of Chippewa-Cree, a legitimate although federally unrecognized Native American tribe. They are however a state recognized tribe with approximately 4,000 enrolled members settled in or around Great Falls, Montana. Little Shell Band of Montana has no connections to extremism or to the Little Shell Pembina Band of North America. (Pembina refers to the area around the Pembina River in northeastern North Dakota).

Law enforcement officers are asked to use caution when approaching individuals bearing sovereign or constitutional plates and profess to be anti-government patriots, Sovereign Citizens, Freeman, etc. Occupants of these vehicles have been known to carry weapons, become verbal or combative, file liens against officer's homes and file fraudulent IRS documents.

Please report contact with members of the Little Shell Pembina Tribe and/or other anti-government extremist groups to the Division of Criminal Intelligence, Intelligence Analyst Michelle George, (608) 267-1325 or georgemm@doj.state.wi.us.

Terrorist Screening Center Consolidates Data For Law Enforcement Needs

The Terrorist Screening Center (TSC) is the result of a September 16, 2003 presidential directive to consolidate multiple terrorist watch lists into a comprehensive database, the Terrorist Screening Database (TSDB). The TSDB is available to all law enforcement via the National Crime Information Center (NCIC). The TSC is administered by the Federal Bureau of Investigation with support from the Intelligence Community, the Department of Justice, the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of State, the Department of Treasury, and the Department of Defense.

During an encounter, law enforcement queries the NCIC system, which automatically runs the subject through the TSDB. A match between the name queried and a name in the system produces a warning statement or "banner," alerting law enforcement to contact the TSC 24/7 call center. In addition, preliminary instructions determined by a four category instruction handling code alert process are provided in the NCIC printout to assist with handling the encounter. The law enforcement officer must then contact the TSC who will assist in determining whether the person encountered is a positive or negative identity match to the person in the TSDB. All positive or inconclusive matches are then passed to the FBI Counterterrorism Watch (CT Watch) for follow-up action. The CT Watch advises law enforcement on appropriate intervention and, if necessary, contacts the local JTTF to coordinate an investigation.

For additional information, please contact TSC Outreach Coordinator Frank Buckley, (703) 418-9522 or Frank.Buckley@tsc.gov.

7592 – ROOF TOP BURGLARIES – St. Francis Police Department, WI

The St. Francis Police Department is requesting information regarding serial burglary suspect(s) who have been operating in the metro Milwaukee County area since February 2002.

In February 2002, a series of burglaries began taking place in the metro area. The targets of these burglaries are generally Family Dollar, Dollar Tree and Dollar Stores. In all these cases, entry is made by roof top. The suspect(s) will make an entry via the roof mounted heating/air condition units. Typically these stores are not alarmed.

Once entry is made, cutting tools are generally used to enter any safe or cash box. In some cases the safe may be removed by handcart, which is already on the scene. The suspect(s) are bringing their own cutting tools to the crime scenes and they take those tools with them on departure. They have been known to use some small tools or electrical cords from the crime scene. If they observe any security camera, they will manipulate the camera to change its view. They may also attack and damage any digital or computer drives if they feel this is the style of security video being used.

We are aware of 25 cases, with the last known case in September 2004. There have been general periods of inactivity. The most notable was from 7-26-02 until 8-4-03.

There is matching and complete DNA profile of the suspect in both St. Francis burglaries and a City of Milwaukee burglary. At this time there is no match for the profile in the Wisconsin DNA databank, or nationally.

A photo was taken by surveillance video at one of the Milwaukee Police Department crime scenes. In this image, the white male can be observed wearing heavy work gloves. The security video also captured the foot image of another suspect.

DNA evidence, which has been recovered so far, has been from cigarette butts and toilets. In a number of cases, the suspects have used the crime scene bathroom to urinate, and urine stains have been found on toilet seats. At another scene, the suspect has urinated in roof top snow.

Anyone with similar cases or suspect information is asked to contact the undersigned.
