MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Colleague –

The past two years have been a difficult time for law enforcement in many parts of our country, and even here at home in Wisconsin. Law enforcement personnel have been placed under a microscope like never before, adding more stress to an already very stressful profession. What can we do to take care of the ones who take care of us and keep us safe? That is a question that all need to be asking. As we approach National Police Week and think about those who have made the ultimate sacrifice in selfless service to others, now is also a time to think about those who struggle with the psychological and emotional trauma of working in the law enforcement profession. You are exposed to the deep suffering of others in society, bear witness to its most horrific events, are asked to bring order from chaos, whether man-made or of natural origin, and to stop those who prey upon others, with force if necessary, and to do all of this without showing any of the negative effects of the stress. These stressors carry over to the personal lives of officers and civilian employees, just as personal stressors carry over to our professional life. The psychological and emotional well-being of those we ask so much of is every bit as important as their physical safety, yet far too often it is not given the attention it needs.

The 2016 Attorney General's Summit on Public Safety focused on these specific issues and topics. Some of the topics covered this year included Peer Support Teams, Chaplain Programs, the Role of the Agency in Addressing the Impact of Trauma, Concerns of Police Survivors (C.O.P.S.), Law Enforcement Death Response Teams, and Fostering Resilience. Conference feedback was very positive and we received many requests to continue this type of training.

The Wisconsin Department of Justice also sent out a survey to law enforcement last month that focused on wellness programs within our state. 1,000 individuals, both sworn and civilian, participated! This survey focused on what resources are currently available to Law Enforcement employees in Wisconsin and where there are gaps. The responses which represent dozens of agencies in all corners of the state are helping steer the Department of Justice toward finding and creating the necessary resources to eliminate shortcomings for all law enforcement personnel. If, at any point, you or your agency is struggling to find the training or support you require, please reach out to our staff in Training and Standards so we may address your needs.

I have said one of my top jobs as Attorney General is helping to ensure officers come home safely after every shift, and that extends to making sure our law enforcement professionals, both sworn and civilian, are not carrying the burden of unseen wounds when they do return home to their families. With this in mind, I have asked our team to put together a multi-disciplinary committee to identify and address gaps in officer wellness training and resources. This committee has met twice now and has started to develop a plan to ensure law enforcement wellness needs are met, for the sake of the officers, their families, their agencies and the communities they serve. I would ask that you provide ideas or comments to our staff so we can better serve you in this endeavor.

I am committed to doing our part to care and support those who care for us and I pray you stay safe and healthy in all you do.

Very truly yours,

Brad D. Schimel
Attorney General

LEGAL POINTS

State v. Parisi Decided by the Wisconsin Supreme Court, 2/24/2016

Issue:

Whether there was exigent circumstances for a warrantless blood draw looking for heroin in a subject's system. The Supreme Court held that there was a sufficient exigency of evidence dissipation and upheld the blood draw.

Facts:

The police responded to a report of a man who was possibly not breathing, and found the defendant lying on the floor, unable to talk. There was evidence of heroin use in the home and an officer administered Narcan to the defendant. The defendant was then taken to a hospital where his condition remained unstable. The police asked the defendant for consent to a blood draw and he refused. The officer then arranged for a blood draw, revealing evidence that the defendant had heroin in his system.

The Defendant's Argument:

The defendant argued that his blood draw evidence should be suppressed as it was non consensual and was obtained without a search warrant. The defendant argued that there were no exigent circumstances as there was time to get a warrant because evidence of heroin use remains detectable in the body for several hours.

The State's Argument:

The state argued that there were sufficient exigent circumstances, and also argued that even if the seizure was now unlawful, it occurred before the McNealy rule requiring search warrants for non consensual blood draws in the OWI context. So, the blood draw should be allowed under the good faith doctrine.

The Wisconsin Supreme Court Holding:

The Wisconsin Supreme Court found that there were sufficient exigent circumstances to justify the warrantless blood draw. Since, the court found the police actions lawful, the court did not consider the good faith issue.

In finding exigency, the court noted that heroin and its first metabolite could become undetectable in blood plasma in as little as one hour. The court specifically noted that heroin dissipates quicker than alcohol. The court observed that there were several factors that made it impracticable to get a search warrant. 1) The rapid dissipation of heroin in blood, 2) The time needed to obtain a warrant, and 3) the defendant's unstable physical condition.

The court took pains to say that they are not creating a "bright line rule" for exigency in heroin cases but that each case is to be decided by its particular circumstances.

Key Point:

This case does nothing to change McNeely as this case involved heroin, and not an OWI investigation. And, though the court does not create a bright line rule for warrantless non-consensual blood draws in heroin cases, it is likely that most cases will involve physically unstable defendants, and all cases will deal with the rapid dissipation rate of heroin and its first metabolite.

A LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER YOU SHOULD KNOW

SUBMIT A LAW ENFORCEMENT MEMBER FOR RECOGNITION

Law enforcement officers, jailors, and juvenile detention personnel work tirelessly day-in and day-out to serve and protect our citizens. All too often their daily performance is taken for granted and only becomes newsworthy when something extraordinary happens.

The Department of Justice (DOJ) would like to recognize and provide a format for agencies and peers to recognize law enforcement officers, jailors, and juvenile detention officers who exhibit exceptional commitment, dedicated community service, and ethical leadership on a daily basis as they perform their duties. While many awards exist to recognize exceptional service, the so called "routine efforts" can sometimes go unnoticed.

DOJ would like to start featuring these dedicated public servants in the Law Enforcement Bulletin. If you are interested in participating in this great recognition opportunity please submit a candidate through the electronic form now available in the Law Enforcement Bulletin section of WILENET.

On the submission form you will have the opportunity to provide a short bio of the individual and share a story or provide an example of the extra effort, kindness, or creativity that your member shows in their work on a daily basis.
