MESSAGE FROM THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

Dear Law Enforcement Colleague,

I'm pleased to share that the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration has announced its next National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day event is scheduled for Saturday, September 27, 2014. As part of the Department of Justice's Heroin prevention public awareness campaign -- The Fly Effect -- we will again be airing our TV and radio spots throughout September to promote the Take-Back Initiative. I encourage you to consider participating again in this year's initiative. Earlier this year, April's National Prescription Drug Take-Back Day resulted in 25 tons (50,485 lbs.) of unwanted, expired or unused prescription drugs being dropped off at 200 collection sites statewide. According to the DEA, Wisconsin ranked third in the nation in the total amount collected, trailing only California and Texas. You're welcome to contact Nancy Carter, Intelligence Analyst out of the DEA's Milwaukee District Office, for more information about registering. She can be reached by email at Nancy.L.Carter@usdoj.gov, or by phone at 414-336-7403. And, as always, I encourage you to reach out to my office if you're looking to share our Fly Effect campaign materials, or you're in need of assistance or information.

With regard to drug disposal programs, I also want to highlight 2013 Wisconsin Act 198, which was enacted on April 7, 2014. This legislation authorizes the creation of programs to receive household pharmaceutical items (including prescription drugs and other controlled substances) and to recycle, destroy, or otherwise dispose of those items, pursuant to Wis. Stat. § 66.0437. Drug disposal programs created and operated by a person pursuant to this legislation must first be authorized by the Wisconsin Department of Justice (DOJ). In addition, a city, village, town, or county may operate or authorize a drug disposal program within the boundaries of the political subdivision. These statutory changes take effect on July 1, 2015.

The purpose of the changes is to ensure that any person or municipality operating a drug disposal program has the clear legal authority to do so, and to ensure that such programs are developed with appropriate guidelines and oversight.

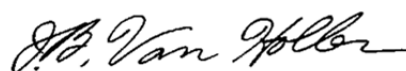

A person may operate a drug disposal program if that program has been authorized in writing by the DOJ.¹ The DOJ may authorize such a program if it meets the following conditions: (1) the program must include appropriate policies and procedures as specified by Wis. Stat. §

¹A drug disposal program may also be operated if authorized under federal law, specifically under 21 U.S.C. 801-974 or 21 C.F.R. 1300-1321.

165.65(5); and (2) if the program will receive household pharmaceutical items in any manner other than an in-person transfer by the person who has legal possession of the items, the person must show that such transfers will comply with all applicable state and federal laws. Likewise, a political subdivision may operate a drug disposal program, or may grant written authorization for a person to operate a drug disposal program, if the program meets the two conditions listed above and if the program is only operated within the boundaries of the political subdivision.²

These changes will help clarify the law regarding the disposal of controlled substances. If you have questions regarding these statutory provisions, please contact the DOJ. Information regarding the approval process, including forms and guidelines, will be forthcoming from the Department in the coming months. Thank you and God bless.

Sincerely,

*J.B. Van Hollen
Attorney General*

²The statutes provide an exception for a program that is operated in more than one political subdivision if the program is authorized under federal law, or if the program is authorized by DOJ and by all political subdivisions in which it is operated.

County of Grant v. Vogt Decided by the Wisconsin Supreme Court 7/18/14

Issue:

Does a police officer seize a defendant when he/she approaches a parked vehicle and knocks on the car window and asks the driver to roll down the window? Calling it a close case, the Wisconsin Supreme Court held that the police did not seize the defendant, since the defendant could have driven away and the police did not engage in authoritative behavior. The court reiterated the notion that determining whether a person is seized for 4th amendment purposes or merely engaged in a consensual encounter with the police is based on the totality of the circumstances.

Facts:

In the early morning hours of December 25, around 1 am, the police observed a vehicle pull into a parking lot next to a closed park and boat landing on the Mississippi. The officer did not notice any traffic infractions, and all parties conceded that the officer did not have a reasonable suspicion upon which to base a Terry contact. Nevertheless, the officer was curious about the situation and so he drove his squad into the parking lot and parked the marked squad behind the defendant's vehicle. The squad's headlights were on but its red and blue emergency lights were not.

The defendant's vehicle was running, though stopped, and had its lights on. The police squad was not blocking the defendant's vehicle from leaving the scene. The officer got out of his squad; the officer was wearing his full uniform and had a pistol in his side holster. The officer rapped on the window and motioned for the driver to roll down the driver's window. The officer then made contact with the defendant, and eventually the defendant was arrested for O.W.I.

The Defendant's Argument:

The defendant argued that the officer made a 4th amendment seizure when he rapped on the door window and motioned for the defendant to roll down the window. The defendant then argued that the seizure was unlawful as the police did not have the requisite reasonable suspicion to make a "Terry" contact.

The County's Argument:

While conceding that the police did not have the necessary reasonable suspicion to make a Terry stop, the county argued that there was no 4th amendment seizure as the officer's were merely trying to engage in a consensual encounter.

The Supreme Court Holding:

Calling it a very close case, the Wisconsin Supreme Court agreed with the county and held that there was no seizure. The court reasoned that the mere fact that a uniformed officer raps on a window and asks the driver to roll down a window does not automatically a seizure has taken place. Instead the court looks at the totality of the circumstances to determine whether the police are seizing the defendant or alternatively merely trying to make contact for a consensual encounter. The court looks at whether the police used any authoritative tactics, and also whether a reasonable person in the defendant's position would feel they were free to go. In this case, the court noted that the police officer did not draw his gun, did not raise his voice, did not block the defendant's vehicle, and did not have his emergency lights on. Accordingly, the court held that the police did not seize the defendant when they first made contact with him.

Cautionary Note: In many cases a police officer rapping on a parked car window would constitute a seizure. If the police have reasonable suspicion then they need not concern themselves about utilizing authoritative measures as they would be making a valid 4th amendment seizure. However, if the police do not have reasonable suspicion but wish to make contact with the driver of a parked vehicle they should do the following to set up a consensual encounter; 1) Not block the vehicle, so that the defendant could drive away if he/she wished to, 2) Not turn on their squad's red and blue emergency lights, 3) Not use commands, 4) Not brandish a weapon, and 5) use a normal speaking voice.

As officer approached vehicle, driver shot officer striking him in head, stomach and ankle. After being wounded, victim officer fell to roadway with service weapon still snapped in holster. Subject sped off in vehicle. Nearby citizens came to victim officers aid and attempted chest compressions until medics arrived. Victim officer succumbed to his wounds at local medical facility.

Driver of vehicle was determined from prior law enforcement contact with registered owner of vehicle. Subject was fugitive wanted for felony probation violation warrant which carried with it approximately 3 years of back prison time. Investigation of potential addresses where subject may be hiding was conducted.

Individuals from these addresses were interviewed in order to obtain additional information or leads. After about 4 hours, subject's unoccupied vehicle was located in back yard area of local residence. Investigators learned subject had switched vehicles and was in other area of St. Paul. When officers located subject, they realized subject had passenger with him. Upon being located, subject sped away and attempted to evade law enforcement officers. Subject pulled into business driveway and opened gunfire on several law enforcement officers who drove into lot. When officers returned gunfire, subject and his passenger were struck several times. While many awards exist to recognize exceptional service, the so called "routine efforts" can sometimes go unnoticed.

DOJ would like to start featuring these dedicated public servants in the Law Enforcement Bulletin. If you are interested in participating in this great recognition opportunity please submit a candidate through the electronic form now available in the Law Enforcement Bulletin section of WILENET.

Humane officers: A good answer to the age old problem of animal abuse and neglect

Registration deadline for training is September 17

By Yvonne Bellay, DVM, MS

“Teen accused of slitting dog’s throat”

“Experts fear cat killer is capable of worse”

These are the headlines no police chief or sheriff wants to see in the morning paper. Why? Animal cases arouse public emotion unlike almost any other kind of issue. In these days of animal rights debate, the emotion has reached new heights. And animal cases are complex, crossing the lines of cruelty laws, public health, zoning ordinances, privacy and cultural differences. They demand some knowledge of animal husbandry. Evidence collection is specialized – collecting fecal samples is not the same as dusting for fingerprints. These cases are never cut and dried, and they’re always more complex than simple issues of food and water. They can eat up your time and resources, and still come to nothing. If it turns out right, you’re a hero. If it turns out wrong, you’re incompetent, unethical or both.

And so, too often, animal cases get ignored while you focus on crimes with human victims.

Animal cases almost never present the proverbial win-win situation, it’s true. But they don’t have to be no-win cases, and they don’t have to drain resources from other law enforcement efforts. And given the clear link between animal abuse and domestic abuse, a successful prosecution in an animal case may well prevent future crimes where humans get hurt.

What’s the answer? Appointing a trained, certified humane officer to take charge of animal cases and complaints. Now’s the time to think about doing just that, because the state’s once-a-year training course is coming up this fall.

The Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection will offer its annual humane officer training course September 22-26, 2014 in Madison. This 40-hour course teaches a special set of skills and a body of law that applies only to animal cases. The training makes the job of investigating these cases easier to handle and leads to a more enforceable case against the offender.

As a trained humane officer, you will learn the differences between photographing an animal hoarder’s home and a crime scene. You’ll know the process for taking a fecal sample and how it differs from taking fingerprints and whether a ratty-looking coat is seasonal shedding or a sign of neglect.

The curriculum covers a wide range of topics including the role of an animal investigator, Wisconsin animal law, evaluation of cruelty, nutrition, photography, and evidence collection specifically relating to animal cases. Training is conducted by veterinarians, attorneys and law officers with years of experience in investigating animal cases. Hands-on training at the University of Wisconsin-Madison barns is another highly rated feature of the class.

Watch your mailbox for our registration brochure, which should arrive soon or contact Gena Goldade at 608-224-4889, e-mail gena.goldade@wi.gov. You can also get the details and download a registration form on our website: <http://datcp.wisconsin.gov>, under the “Animals” pull-down menu.

Dr. Bellay coordinates the humane officer program for the Animal Health Division of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture, Trade and Consumer Protection.
